UNIT 5 – E-PUBLISHING: PRODUCT PAGE

Exercise 1

Previously, we discussed a good e-commerce website. Related to the topic, think about the last item you bought online. What did you buy? Why did you buy it? What made you decide to buy the item at the store? Why were you so sure that your transaction is secure? When finally the item that you bought arrived, were you satisfied with it? Was it like what you once imagined? What are the criteria of a good product page? Share your thoughts with the class.

Answer:

The last item I bought online was a T-shirt from Shopee. I decided to buy it because I liked the design and the price was affordable. The product page showed clear pictures, detailed descriptions, and many positive customer reviews, which made me confident about the quality. I also trusted the store because Shopee uses a secure payment system with an escrow service, so the seller only receives the money after I confirm that the product has arrived safely.

When the T-shirt finally arrived, I was very satisfied. The size fit me perfectly, the material was soft, and the color was exactly like what I saw in the picture. It was just as I imagined when I ordered it. In my opinion, a good product page should have clear photos, honest descriptions, complete size information, and customer reviews that help buyers make the right choice. Shopping on Shopee makes me feel safe and comfortable because the website is easy to use, the payment system is secure, and the products usually arrive on time.

Exercise 2

1. What is the purpose of writing a clear product description?
C. to help customers make informed decisions
2. What do high-quality images help customers do?
B. visualize the product
3. What does the text suggest avoiding in descriptions?
A. confusion
4. What do reviews encourage potential buyers to do?
A. trust the product
5. What helps build trust according to the text?
C. clear pricing and shipping details
6. What is the function of a call to action?
A. to guide customers to make a purchase
7. Why should a product be shown in use?
A. to demonstrate real-life benefits
8. What do satisfied buyers need to be encouraged to do?
B. leave reviews
9. What is the main purpose of a product page?
B. to convert visitors into buyers
10. What does “offering clear pricing” help with?
B. building trust

Exercise 3

After reading the text above, conclude what makes a product page effective. You may also add more reliable references about the criteria of an effective product page. Then, in pairs, find any e-commerce website available dan analyze whether it fulfills the criteria or not. And if you have to re-develop the website, what features will you add? Share with the class.

Answer:

A good product page should have clear descriptions, high-quality images, customer reviews, transparent pricing, and a strong call to action. These elements help attract customers and build trust.

For example, Shopee already fulfills most of these criteria because it provides clear photos, detailed information, and secure payments. However, if I could improve it, I would add video demonstrations and a virtual try-on feature to make the shopping experience more interactive and realistic.

Exercise 4

1. What is the main goal of a product description?
 - A. to help customers make a purchase
2. Why is it important to know your audience?
 - A. to choose the right words and tone
3. What does the writer suggest using instead of only listing features?
 - B. product benefits
4. Why should you add emotion to your descriptions?
 - A. to make the reader feel connected
5. What does “Enjoy using your phone all day” focus on?
 - C. the benefit for the customer
6. What can happen if you use too many keywords?
 - B. It makes the text hard to read.
7. What shows professionalism in product descriptions?
 - B. correct grammar and spelling
8. What does the phrase "to write with purpose" mean?
 - A. to write with a clear goal
9. What is recommended before writing a product description?
 - A. thinking about your audience
10. What does the text say about technical terms?
 - A. use them only if your audience expects them
